SUNDAY SAILORS REPORT August 13 2023 – Winter Series Race Eight

Intro

Again basically fine weather heralded in Race 8. Some showers on the horizon, after some rain overnight. But the threatening showers drifted North towards Altona and left us alone. The wind was steady in strength, 6 to eight knots, but did vary in direction. A North Westerly at the start became a South Westerly on the second leg and then gradually eased towards the West again. Along the shore there was a hint of a lift closer in. The weather got sunny and the seas were fairly flat. All very pleasant.

The course was a short one, course 17 – 7.3 Nm a well picked one in the conditions!!! Tower staff were Margaret Whitbread and Bruce Reidy. Many many thanks to them!!

Results

There were 16 starters and all finished and recorded a result. David Keyes- Tilley still hasn't worked out this new fangled Member Point technology and so had an ENP that relegated him from 12th to 17th.... Well Sheba (Michael Pisani), the smallest boat in the fleet, overtook two boats on the last leg to snatch a well earned victory flying a large assymetrical kite. Similarly second was La Mer (Michael Ebeling) who came from 4th to 2nd on the same leg, following Sheba in tacking downwind under assy kite also. The third was Winsome (Simon Hemingway) who got past Allegria (Simon May) on the last leg to snatch the lead before being overhauled by the kite bandits. Allegria had led through most of the race and must have thought they were going to bring home the bacon (or kale if you are vegetarian). Sheba reported that they spent the whole race in close contact with Winsome with the places being swapped many times, before prevailing on the last leg.

Sheba- a well earned victory today.

Start of the Day

Start of the day was won by Winsome at 4 seconds, with La Mer and Hot Chipps (John Chippery) recording 5 seconds, from Dullthuggery (Garry McClintock) on 7 seconds... Simon Hemingway (Winsome) said that he had a better run at the line this week because Peter Dunne (Upbeat) wasn't there trying to mess him up...

Again starts over a minute are not shown to spare the blushes of the miscreants.

Series: Start of the Day

Best 5 Starts: Skullduggery 23 seconds, Winsome 34 seconds, La Mer 55 seconds, Firefox 61 seconds. Maybe there is something to Skullduggery charging the line, pinging the line and terrorising us mere mortals!!

La Mer placed second and had the fastest elapsed time

Below: Skullduggery – starting experts; leading the series for Start of the Day

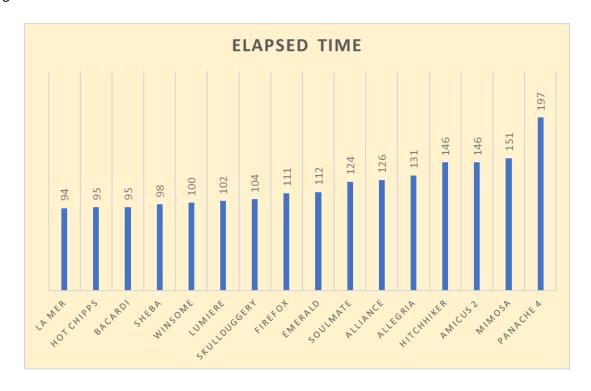

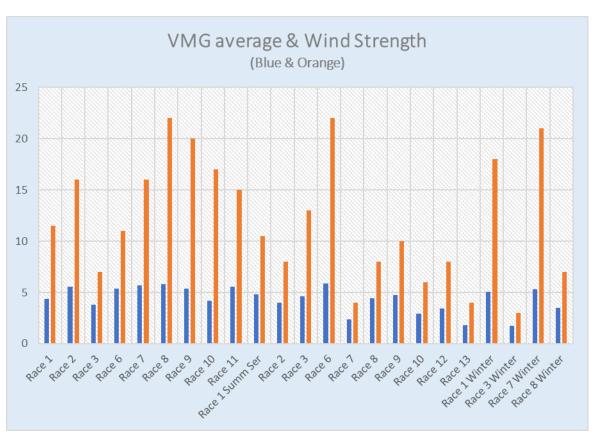

Winsome (on another day). A third and Start of the Day. Also placing second in the series!!

Elapsed Times

La Mer (under spinnaker) was the fastest from Hot Chipps and Bacardi. A minute split the top three. Sheba (the smallest boat in the fleet) was fourth fastest (and won) – well done. Winsome was fifth. Hot Chipps would have featured more prominently in the finish results but had a 52 minute handicap. Average elapsed time was 128 minutes, giving a fleet average VMG of 3.47 knots in the light conditions.

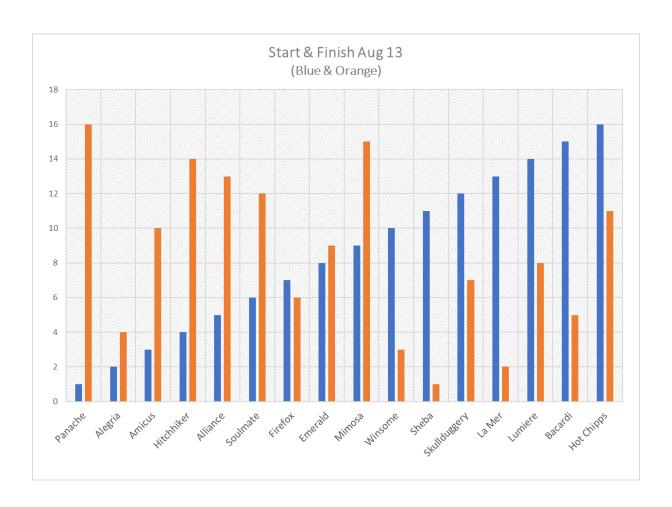

Firefox , placing third in the series

START AND FINISH POSITIONS

The biggest movers in the fleet were La Mer (11 places), Sheba (10 places) and Bacardi (10 places). David Keyes-Tilley got mixed up between MemberPoint and his appointment book for next week and so dropped 4 places with his ENP. Mimosa (Joshua Buxton) sailed for the first time and did well, so we will forgive him his Brighton sail number (B51), although Mimosa was down in the race results as SM899!!!

SERIES LEAD

After 8 races (with 1 drop and 1 abn) Emerald, Winsome and Firefox are seperated by 1 point. With 2 races to go Bacardi and Sheba are also in contention. Last seasons winner, by the home stretch, Dullthuggery is out of contention although they were handicapped a bit and have spent all season improving their handicap — and now have had 5 minutes of relief- despite 5 results in the top 10. Stuart Morrison- Jack please investigate!!!

Gossip and other matters.

La Mer had a very good result today (2nd), particularly as they turned to go around no 3 with kite and genoa up, fair confusion and promptly hit no 3. This tense moment was witnessed (from a distance) by your correspondent. Surprisingly the boat was calm despite almost hitting Winsome as she came up from behind.

Bob Reeves "the wind whisper" sailed on Winsome today. Their third (and start of the day) continues the excellent results on boats he sails on: Alliance, Razzle Dazzle and Foggy Dew. Rumour has it that Simon Hemingway parted with some money to Get Bob's services – I think he received value for money.

Warwick Stenford was again seen sailing Amicus2 solo around the course. When those of us think 5 is a bare minimum, he sailed with just himself. Bravo!! His father John used to sail Amicus 10-15 years ago and used to battle with Defiance (Ian Hetherington), Kaos (the Cleavers), Cassandra of Melbourne (Bob Reeves), Moncouer (Geoff Lomdahl and partners) and Antares (Stewart and Pearce).

With thanks to the tower volunteers Margaret Whitbread and Bruce Reidy, the sponsors Mercedes Benz Brighton and apologies to anyone he feels they have been slandered or misrepresented.

LUFFING LANCE

Series Leader Emerald (Tony Tanner) who had an uneventful day today.

Simon "You're taking my wind" May (Allegria) who finished fourth today after leading most of the race.
